A Simple Way to Protect Yourself from Scams

If someone unexpectedly asks for money or other personal information, remember these three steps.

STOP

Do not act immediately.

Scammers often try to pressure you into making quick decisions. Always take a moment to think before responding.

Stop if someone asks for:

- Money
- Passwords
- Social Security or Medicare numbers
- One-time verification codes
- Other personal information

VERIFY

Confirm the request using a trusted source.

Do not trust the phone number, email, or website provided in the message.

Instead:

Call the organization using a phone number you already know, visit the organization's official website, and ask whether the request is legitimate.

ASK

Talk to someone you trust before taking action.

If something does not feel right, ask for another opinion. Having the contact information for someone you trust is critical for these situations.
